Make sure your address is up to date so you never miss an issue!

Never stop learning with educational workshops

2

With classes available online and in-person (post-pandemic), members are encouraged to hone in on a specific craft or venture out to learn something new. Our signature artist development program has a library of educational videos, seminars, workshops and master classes online, as well as 1:1 interviews with filmmakers as part of our IDA Conversation series.

Screen and vote for nominees at IDA Documentary Awards

3

Be part of the most prestigious documentary awards show of its kind, IDA Documentary Awards. Members are entitled to screen nominees for Best Feature and Best Short, then cast their vote for their top 3 favorites in each category. With 20 films to screen every season, this is a great way for members to participate within the doc community and support their favorite films.

Fund your film with help of Fiscal Sponsorship from IDA*

Applying for fiscal sponsorship allows you to use IDA, a 501(c)(3) public charity, as a sponsor to your project for fundraising purposes. Many filmmakers choose to use this as an alternative to starting their own nonprofit. Through fiscal sponsorship, you can seek and solicit grants, tax-deductible donations for your doc, all with the support and oversight of the IDA. The IDA has sponsored hundreds of films in every phase—development, production, post-production, distribution, and outreach—both new and seasoned filmmakers are encouraged to apply.

Explore the Member Directory and meet community members around the world
